

Our association has been serving members for over 72 years, and they rely on us for information about services relevant to their practices. I'm writing to urge you to remove the "established business relationship" qualification from the fax regulations. It will seriously impair our ability to provide member services, and is absolutely bad for business. It is unreasonable to force associations to obtain the written consent of their own members or industry partners before transmitting any fax that the FCC could interpret as commercial in nature. Further, we would need clarification on what the FCC would interpret as commercial.
